DOMINICAN CORNER

Are We Following Christ's Revelations in Our Lives?

Br. Mark Joseph Soto, O.P., reflects on the Gospel for the Feast of the Epiphany of the Lord (Mt 2:1-12)

My dear brothers and sisters, our Savior has come as the bright light shining in the darkness! Today we celebrate the Epiphany of our Lord, His birth revealed to the Magi by the Star of Bethlehem. We too get to experience our own epiphany for ourselves. The Wise Men were trained to interpret the stars, so in a sense, because of their training, they were docile to the prompting of the star to go, find, and worship the new King. Guess what, we too, by our Baptism, have received this glistening Star, the Holy Spirit, God Himself, in our own souls! The question is, are we attuned to being docile and following our Bright Light?

This star, seen by the Wise Men, was not just for them, but for everyone else as well, this is a sign that each of us is given the opportunity now in this life to meet the God Man! They first went to King Herod in Jerusalem to inquire about where the new King was to be born. From there, they were sent to Bethlehem. So too in our own journey to finding and growing in love for the Child Jesus, it is going to take time, effort, the help of our neighbor, and ultimately His grace to redirect us towards this bright Star. This journey is a journey of sanctity. And there is nothing to be afraid of because that Star in your soul is the flame of Holy Spirit, shining bright to guide you in trial, tribulation, and also in joys.

But there are so many things one can do. What is it that I need to do? I don't feel like a saint....

We think of the Wise Men only giving gold, frankincense, and myrrh when they finally meet the Child, but really, the first gift was in their yes to go on this long and probably stressful trek. This was a certain acceptance of God's grace. So, we may feel far from sainthood, but sainthood starts with accepting that grace, giving it back to our Redeemer by following that grace, and ultimately giving all the crosses and joys along the way. We then offer our gold, frankincense, and myrrh which for us can resemble what is most precious to us, our very lives.

And guess what, we don't have to wait very long at all to start offering these gifts of ours. Run to the holy Mass and offer yourself as a victim of love, handing over your entire being. That is a powerful time and place to offer these gifts and return home another way, truly transformed, running home by way of joy and peace, for our Savior has come and meets us face to face.

ST. RAYMOND, OUR PATRON

GREAT DOMINICANS: ST. RAYMOND OF PENYAFORT (JAN. 7)

By Br Stefan Mangnus O.P.

When a great legal mind and a deeply pastoral heart come together, something special is bound to happen.

Raymond of Penyafort (ca. 1175 – 1275) was one of the great legal minds of his time. Born in a village near Barcelona, he was trained as a canon lawyer and occupied the chair of canon law in Bologna, at that time the place to be for anyone interested in law.

In Bologna Raymond met the Dominicans, and joined the order at the age of 47. He went back to Barcelona, but Pope Gregory IX had heard of his juridical talent, and asked him to come to Rome for an important task. For some centuries, papal decrees had been multiplying and were scattered over a unhelpfully great number of collections: Raymond was to rearrange and bring order in canon law. In 1234 the work was finished, and Pope Gregory publicly thanked “our dear Son, brother Raymond” for his work. The “Decretals of Gregory IX” as they became known, are an exceptional collection of canon law: they remained the standard in the church for almost 700 years, until the Codex of Canon Law was published in 1917.

After the work on the Decretals was finished, Raymond returned to Spain, but could not stay there very long: in 1238 his Dominican brothers chose him as the third Master of the Order. Although he was by now over 60 years old, he set out on foot to visit all the houses of friars and nuns of the Order. In the meantime, he drafted a new set of constitutions for the order, in which he included a resignation clause for the Master. When the constitutions were accepted by the next general chapter of 1240, he immediately took advantage of that option and stepped down.

Raymond is well known for his Decretals, and we Dominicans know him as our third Master, but there was another side to brother Raymond. In Barcelona, he wrote the “Summa de casibus poenitentiae”, an handbook to help his Dominican brothers with questions that might arise in hearing confessions. In contrast to existing handbooks for confessors, Raymond did not just give a list of sins and suggested penances, but discussed pertinent doctrines and laws of the church to help the understanding of the confessors.

In his years in Rome, Raymond was the confessor of Pope Gregory IX. Back in Barcelona, he became the confessor of King James of Aragon, and was known for his wise counsel. A look at his other works confirms Raymond’s deeply pastoral heart: he wrote a book on marriage, in which he stressed the centrality of free consent, and in which he diverges from a mainly legal approach to discuss the goods of marriage. He also wrote a book settling sensitive cases of conscience.

Looking at these works, it is hard not to think of Raymond as a teacher of Christian freedom: teaching confessors insight in how to free people from the bondage of sins, teaching the centrality of freedom in the love that binds people together in marriage, and writing on conscience, what the church later would call “the most secret core and sanctuary of a man” (Gaudium et Spes 16). Freedom from sin, freedom to give oneself to another in love, freedom of conscience: Raymond of Penyafort put his great legal mind at the service of this “freedom of the children of God”. For this, he is rightly remembered as a great Dominican.
